BCS-MB-002 MILITARY BACKPACK

Backpacks are the main equipment used to carry supplies. They are essential and important equipment for soldiers. When people talk about the word "soldier," the image of a soldier who is wearing a helmet, carrying a heavy backpack, wearing camouflage uniforms and military boots, and holding a rifle fighting on the battlefield is the first thing that comes to mind. With the changes in the needs of the war environment, as well as the application of technology such as material technology and ergonomics in the field of military equipment, military backpacks in different periods have their distinctive characteristics of the times.

BCS Tactical backpacks have very good performance in the durability, toughness and molle system. With different materials and accessories, we can meet various requirements from customers all over the world.

BCS-MB-001 ALICE PACK

Alice Pack is short for All-Purpose Lightweight Individual Carrying Equipment. ALICE is an equipment attachment system and accessory set officially adopted by the military in 1973. The ALICE pack has since been phased out of military service, but lots of people still prefer this method of carry. ALICE packs were designed as a two-component system. Firstly, the belt system, with entrenching carrier, two small cases, canteen cover and suspenders. Secondly, the elements comprising the bag itself which include the cover, bag and frame.

One of the main advantages of the ALICE system is its ruggedness. This pack is capable of carrying large loads and have the added benefit of being moisture resistant (not necessarily waterproof). There are no zippers to break, allowing for some serious gear stuffing. If you're going on a big hike, these should definitely be considered! ALICE packs can be used with or without a frame but the external frame definitely helps balance the load – otherwise, these packs get pretty centre-fat. But, essentially lots of gear that's able to be stuffed in one bag, is pretty handy.

BCS-MB-050 HYDRATION PACKS

Hydration packs are backpacks with built-in water storage reservoirs or bladders and an easy access drinking tube and bite valve that allows you to conveniently take a sip of water whenever the need arises, without having to stop or even slow down. Hydration packs are extremely useful for recreational activities and sporting activities where hands-free style is best. A small hydration pack can be worn while walking, trekking, running, riding a mountain bike and most other activities.
